

Collaboration is Key

Blogs, forums, wikis, file libraries + more

Part of what makes social networking so popular is the collaborative factor; the idea that an opinion matters and can influence others within a community. For your members to have a vested interest in your community, they have to be drawn in, valued and connected.

A great way to do that is through the collaborative features of YourMembership.com's complete online member community. YourMembership.com provides your members with personal blogs, group blogs, wiki-enabled pages, forums, file libraries, surveys, polls, quizzes and more. Web 2.0 collaboration with YourMembership.com means your members can:

- Collaborate with others via blogs, wikis, forums, groups and more
- Create and maintain multiple personal blogs with audio/video sharing
- Browse blogs and forums
- Search across site-wide and group-specific blogs
- Search by tags and blog content
- Post to open blogs
- Subscribe to blogs and comments
- Receive email notification of new posts and comments
- View private group content, blogs, wikis and file libraries
- View, post, tag and subscribe to group blogs
- Contribute to forum discussions
- Edit wiki-enabled pages and content
- View previous versions of, and notes on, wiki-enabled content
- Upload documents to group or community file libraries
- Collaborate on group or community files posted within file libraries
- Participate in optional/required surveys
- and more!

And best of all, these robust features are easy to use and can be toggled on or off depending on business needs. Collaboration is key – and engagement leads to a stronger, more unified member base that's receiving more value from their affiliation with your organization.
